Cavite school gets boost from SM Foundation, enhances learning for hundreds of students

In November 2020, amid the challenges of the COVID-19 pandemic, Punta Elementary School (PES)—one of the oldest schools in the booming town of Tanza, Cavite—marked a significant milestone. Through the SM Foundation's School Building Program, in collaboration with SM Prime, the school received a new two-story, four-classroom building that addressed urgent space needs and created a more conducive environment for learning.

The two-story, four-classroom school building at the 88-year-old Punta Elementary School in Tanza, Cavite, turned over by SM Foundation and SM Prime in November 2020, now caters to classes from Grades 3 to 6, some of which were previously held at the school's covered court pre-pandemic. PHOTO FROM SM FOUNDATION

Nearly five years on, the building continues to serve as a vital space for students from Grades 3 to 6—many of whom once held classes in the school's covered court due to overcrowding.

With a current student population of around 3,000—double the number from before the turnover—the additional classrooms have helped ease congestion at PES, providing space for 55 to 60 learners per class.

The School Building Program outfitted the classrooms with essential amenities such as electric fans, panoramic whiteboards, and chairs—including those designed for left-handed students—crafted by the Foundation of These-Abled Persons. To further support health and hygiene, the foundation also installed a 10-faucet handwashing station on the school grounds.

Free medical and dental care for Park Lane 1, General Trias residents

On May 6, 2025, the Provincial Government of Cavite held a successful medical and dental mission in Park Lane 1, in the City of General Trias. This event was organized to bring free healthcare services closer to the community.

A total of 300 residents came to receive free medical services, which included medical consultations, basic health check-ups, and free prescribed medicines. In addition, 71 individuals also received free dental care, including tooth extractions and oral health advice. Free mosquito repellents were also given out to help protect families from mosquito-borne diseases such as dengue.

Local officials of General Trias and health workers worked hand in hand to ensure that the event ran smoothly and was well-organized. Patients were guided through every step of the process, from registration to consultation and the distribution of medicines.

This activity is part of the Cavite Provincial Government's ongoing efforts to improve the health and well-being of its people. The medical and dental mission in Park Lane 1 is a strong example of what can be achieved when the government and the community collaborate to promote health and wellness. (F.Tamio)

PMCSJ To Meralco: No More Room for Exemptions; Time for Accountability

Quezon City, Philippines — The Department of Energy (DOE) revoked its confirmation of exemption for the 1,200-megawatt (MW) coal project in Atimonan, Quezon. It confirmed that the project's Acknowledgement of Non-Coverage from the 2020 coal moratorium has been recalled for further review. This followed a statement by MGen President and Chief Executive Officer Emmanuel Rubio that they have confirmation of MGen's moratorium exemption in its Atimonan, Quezon and Toledo, Cebu coal projects.

According to Ian Rivera, National Coordinator of the Philippine Movement for Climate Justice (PMCSJ), these projects should not be exempted from the coal moratorium as doing so undermines the very principle of why the moratorium exists.

"The 2020 moratorium covers 'greenfield' coal plants, which only excludes existing coal plants with firm expansion plans, approved permits from LGU and local environmental boards, and 'committed' projects. None of these exemptions should apply to the planned Atimonan Power Station," Rivera added.

In 2021, Meralco abandoned plans of constructing a coal-fired power plant in Subic, Zambales, announcing that it is moving away from coal. This is considered as the first pressure point for Meralco to cancel its proposed plants in Quezon because a top bank executive said they pulled out funding for Subic and Atimonan.

The planned coal project was earlier repurposed into a fossil gas plant that uses liquefied natural gas (LNG) instead of coal. When this did not work out, MGen reverted its plans to coal and has been waiting for the Acknowledgement of Non-Coverage of the moratorium ever since.

In late September 2024, the DOE's newest document of committed power projects in Luzon listed the proposal under "natural gas," with "request to revert back the technology of the project to coal."

Atimonan residents have long resisted the planned coal project, staging protest actions and filing complaints over the environmental and construction violations of Atimonan One Energy (A1E), an MGen subsidiary and the coal company responsible for the project.

In 2022, PMCSJ, Kabataan para sa Kalikasan ng Atimonan (KAPAKANAN), and other allied organizations filed a case against A1E in the Court of Appeals and the Supreme Court about the planned coal plant. A letter of opposition was also filed in 2023 when A1E planned to build an LNG plant in place of the coal plant.

"We remain firm in our opposition to the Atimonan coal project, which has burdened our communities for a decade. We reject any so-called 'transition' projects that lock us into a dirty energy state under the guise of 'cleaner' technologies. The shift to ammonia or gas is nothing but a false solution that cannot justify the ongoing destruction of ecosystems and the threats to people's health and livelihoods. We call for a genuine shift to renewable energy—not another delay masked as transition," said Father Warren Puno, Convenor of Quezon for Environment (QUEEN).

"These coal projects exacerbate the climate crisis, and they also directly destroy the communities they invade. The Masinloc Coal Plant, for example, displaced hundreds of families upon its construction and failed to provide proper and humane resettlement for those affected. These coal companies are parasites, leeching off the earth's resources and the people's lives," Rivera said.

As exemptions continue to justify the expansion of the coal portfolio in the country, communities and environmental groups continue to oppose these dirty energy projects. A case in point is the 73-MW Toledo expansion that has caused suffering to the host community due to its negative health, livelihood, and environmental impacts.

While the 73-MW Toledo expansion is exempt from the coal moratorium, people continue to oppose these dirty energy projects, especially as their community has been suffering the effects of existing coal plants.

"Coal plant expansions only expand the suffering they bring to the people in Toledo. These are communities that have already lost their homes and their work because of these dirty coal plants. Coal ash covers their shores and hangs in the very air they breathe. Their waterways are blocked and their flow reversed because of illegal reclamation to make way for the facilities required to sustain these coal plants. What they should be given is their lives, their environment, and their community back, not more coal," PMCSJ Visayas Coordinator Estela Vasquez said.

MGen also expressed intentions of using ammonia as a viable alternative to coal, as it is used by developed countries, and co-fired with coal in their power plants. However, these are not without risks, and the emissions it lessens are essentially minuscule.

"Ammonia co-firing is not a clean alternative to coal. In fact, a study conducted in Japan found that it increases the amount of pollutants in the air," Rivera said. He further explained, "The planned use of fossil gas, which uses LNG as a transition fuel to cleaner sources, is also a fraudulent endeavor. It falsely promotes fossil gas as cleaner than coal. It is not. It is more expensive and causes cardiorespiratory health problems in surrounding communities, as we have seen and documented in Batangas."

"The recent Meralco rate hike and its insistence on using dirty coal and fossil gas have shown its greed for profit at the expense of the environment and our communities. What we demand from these companies is a genuine shift to clean and safe renewable energy sources, not these false solutions marketed as breakthroughs in our race against climate catastrophe. Our planet, our country is burning and Meralco is lighting more matches," Rivera ended. #EndCoal #FossilFuelPhaseOut #ClimateJusticeNow

Labor Day: A tribute to work and the worker

A HEAD of a US congressional hearing on deep-sea mining this week, President Donald Trump issued an executive order enabling US companies and subsidiaries to apply for licenses to mine the seabed in international waters, using a 45-year-old law contrived during the Carter administration — the Deep Seabed Hard Minerals Resources Act — as the legal justification for it. This latest move by Trump is a slap in the face to efforts both in the US Congress and globally to put the brakes on the growing but severely misguided enthusiasm for deep-sea mining and is something that the Philippines should condemn in clear terms.

Unfortunately, for the Philippines to do that, it must first correct its own questionable policy on undersea mining.

It is believed that there are an astonishing amount of mineral resources lying at the bottom of the world's deep oceans, and what is of particular interest are minerals such as manganese, cobalt and nickel that are necessary for green technology. The world's richest patch, the Clipperton-Clarion Fracture Zone, an area in the Pacific between Hawaii and Mexico that is about the size of India, Pakistan and Bangladesh combined, is thought to hold between $8 trillion and $16 trillion in minerals wealth. Along with other types of mineral-rich areas, the deep oceans are thought to hold several times the total amount of minerals found on land.

There is no strong governing body that regulates mining in international waters, although there is an organization called the International Seabed Authority (ISA), which is tacitly supported by the United Nations, that has been tasked to develop an international set of standards and rules. The members of the ISA are primarily mining industry people, and so its actions toward developing an international rule book proceed very much from the assumption that deep-sea mining is something that should and will happen very soon.

Trump has made it clear that he has no use for international agreements, and with respect to deep-sea mining will simply ignore the ISA and whatever it produces, which does not seem to be the unanimously shared point of view in Congress. Trump's issuance of an executive order ahead of congressional hearings seems designed to render those discussions irrelevant.

How the US greenlight on deep-sea mining will be received by the rest of the world can be seen in the fierce resistance the ISA has faced in the past two years. At the ISA meeting in 2023, the organization's plan to issue dozens of exploration licenses was shot down by the signing of a declaration by 21 countries, including mining powerhouses Canada and Brazil, calling for either an outright ban on undersea mining, a moratorium or a "precautionary pause" until more research can be done to better inform the development of a regulatory treaty.

These governments were joined by 37 financial institutions and investment groups, among them French insurance giant Allianz and public bank La Banque Postale group, major Dutch insurance group ASR Nederland and the CZ Group. Several high-profile corporations, such as Samsung, BMW, Volvo and Google parent company Alphabet, also declared they would not use ocean-sourced minerals in their supply chains due to environmental concerns. Since 2023, the US states of California, Oregon and Hawaii have banned all undersea mining within their waters, as have a number of Pacific Island nations.

Besides being extremely challenging technically, many analysts have pointed out that deep-sea mining is economically senseless. In an email statement, University of California at Santa Barbara professor Dr. Douglas McCauley said, "The cobalt and nickel that could be mined from the ocean floor would be the most expensive cobalt and nickel mined anywhere on the planet. Cobalt and nickel are in oversupply today and can be bought with a click on international metal markets at a fraction of the cost."

And of course, the environmental damage that would be done to seabeds that we have not even explored, to say nothing of understanding their ecology, would be incalculable. The only way to mine the seabed with the technology available today is to strip mine the top few meters of its surface.

The Philippines, despite the lip service given by the government to protecting the ocean environment, has yet to take a firm stand against undersea mining; in fact, in late 2023, the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) hosted a workshop in conjunction with the ISA "to discuss the framework needed to enable the country to participate in ocean mining," according to a statement from the DFA at the time. That thinking is on the wrong side of economic and environmental sense, and the wrong side of the debate about deep-sea mining. It must change.

Question About Baldness and Losing Weight

Why are people bald? How can this be avoided?

Answer: Baldness has many reasons: (1) inherited from parents, (2) caused by stress, (3) hair infection and (4) side effect of chemotherapy. If you have a lineage of thinning hair, you can inherit it from your parents. Stress causes "poknat" where there is a part of the scalp that has no hair.

See a dermatologist to determine the cause of hair loss. There are also hair growth medicines.

Here's another advice: Reduce stress. When taking a shower, just slowly shampoo and blow dry your hair so it doesn't fall out. Also don't use tight rubber bands to tie your hair.

• Why does a person get fat? What are the side effects of excess body weight? Do people usually starve themselves to lose weight? If struggling with dieting, what are some easy tips they can do?

Answer: A person gains weight due to overeating or lack of exercise. When you are overweight, you are more likely to develop diseases like diabetes, heart disease, high blood pressure and arthritis.

Taking slimming pills is not good. Most of these

DOKTOR
NG MASA

ni Dr. Willie Ong

are mixed with laxatives and you'll puke. You can run out of nutrients in the body and potassium in the blood. Someone is dying of too low potassium.

It's hard to lose weight but it's possible to do it. Here are my tips. Diet and cut back on your diet. If you used to consume 2 cups of rice, now make it 1 cup.

Avoid all soft drinks, iced tea and canned juices. Full of sugar they make you fat quickly. Drink only water because it has no calories.

Move your body. Use the stairs. Walk instead of sitting. Cleaning up the house. Note: Eat less and try self-control. Good luck.

"When the room is equipped with enough ventilation, learners will be able to concentrate more on their lessons rather than the heat. It may be a factor for a longer attention span, too. This isn't actually just for my learners, but teachers like me also benefit from it," Grade 6 teacher Xeladawn delos Reyes attested.

Delos Reyes also pointed out that as much as their learners are very adaptive and determined, addressing these needs will always be a part of their school's list of priorities that ought to be fulfilled.

"With SM Foundation school building here, the learners of PES have gained an edge. The addition of this facility provides not only convenience, but it saves time, too. Built-in comfort rooms spare a lot of time as students no longer have to ask for permission to go out for bathroom breaks, which allows them to focus on the lessons," Grade 3 teacher Leah Manato said.

The building's construction was finished despite the complexities of situations and uncertainties of the period. This year, the foundation rolled out the maintenance component of its School Building Program and green-lighted repainting and other further refurbishments a move that not only ensured to restore the building's prime but also put inclusivity and convenience.

Since joining the 88-year-old institution in August 2023—nearly three years after the turnover of the new school building—PES Principal Dr. Cynthia Cadua has worked closely with teachers and parents to ensure each learner receives the support they need. For her, the presence of a well-built, permanent structure serves as a reassuring symbol to students and parents alike that they can expect a positive and enriching learning experience the moment they step onto campus.

Since its inception, the SM Foundation School Building Program has turned over 110 school buildings nationwide. Through its construction and ongoing maintenance components, the program upholds the vision of its founder, Henry Sy, Sr., in harnessing the power of education to create equal opportunities for the youth and uplift communities.

Leading the slate of guests was Mr. Paolo Marcoleta, president of SAGIP Partylist and son of the senatorial hopeful. He expressed his deep gratitude to attendees for joining their shared mission to serve the Filipino people and thanked them for their continued support of the SAGIP Partylist, which was formerly led by Dante Marcoleta #38.

Also gracing the event were prominent figures and political allies, including Veronica "Kitty" Duterte, daughter of former President Rodrigo Duterte, and Ms. Honeylet Avanceña, who both thanked the crowd for rallying behind Marcoleta's candidacy.

Senator Robin Padilla delivered a rousing speech, urging the public to back Dante Marcoleta #38 in the coming elections. He hailed Marcoleta as a symbol of hope and resilience, whose legislative track record speaks volumes about his commitment to the nation.

Further boosting the event was a video message from Vice President Sara Duterte, who affirmed her support for Marcoleta's vision. Her endorsement highlighted their shared advocacies and strengthened the political momentum behind Marcoleta's senatorial bid.

In his address, Dante Marcoleta #38 thanked the crowd for their overwhelming turnout and reaffirmed his support for the Office of the Vice President amid ongoing controversies. He emphasized the need for urgent reforms in governance—calling for stronger anti-corruption measures, lower electricity costs, enhanced livelihood and healthcare programs, and greater legal aid for citizens. He also urged Filipinos to be discerning in electing leaders who are genuinely committed to uplifting lives through meaningful change.

The Philippine Arena, the world's largest indoor venue, proved to be a fitting stage for what supporters hailed as a powerful and unifying pre-election rally—one that mirrored Marcoleta's soaring popularity and steadfast dedication to true and fair public service.

PTFOMS Welcomes Philippines' Highest Ranking in 21 Years on World Press Freedom Index

The Presidential Task Force on Media Security (PTFOMS) is pleased to announce that the Philippines has achieved its highest ranking in 21 years on the World Press Freedom Index, as released by Reporters Without Borders (RSF). The country now stands at 116th place out of 180 countries and territories, a notable rise from 134th in 2024, signaling significant enhancements in press freedom.

RSF's report, released on May 2, highlights substantial improvements in the safety and legal frameworks for Philippine media. The nation's overall score climbed by 6.2 points to 49.57 in 2025, reflecting progress across various contextual indicators.

"This ranking is a welcome development on the eve of World Press Freedom Day and a boost to our efforts to address media-related threats and attacks," said PTFOMS Executive Director Jose Torres Jr.

Earlier, the Committee to Protect Journalists (CPJ) noted that 2024 marked the first year in two decades without a journalist fatality in the Philippines, a historic achievement that underscores enhanced safety for media workers. Reports also indicate a decline in legal harassment cases, reflecting an improving legal environment for journalists.

"This progress is a testament to our collective efforts in protecting press freedom. It demonstrates that our proactive initiatives are yielding results," Torres said.

"With the cooperation of government agencies like the Department of Justice and the Philippine National Police, as well as our media partners, we will remain vigilant in defending press freedom and ensuring the safety of journalists."

Torres acknowledged the ongoing challenges being faced by the Philippine media. "We recognize the difficulties we continue to face, including the recent killing of veteran journalist Juan Dayang. We are deeply saddened by this incident. No Filipino, whether journalist or not, should suffer the fate of Mr. Dayang."

He assured the public that "the Philippine Na-
